A court room and the court process can be a rather daunting experience. The internet provides us with a wealth of resources and information. The internet should not be used as a substitute for a lawyer. If you are not experienced in law, not just the laws themselves but the practice of law, it can easily be misinterpreted.

TYNDALL & CO.

Tyndall & Co. ® is a firm with several disciplines- a legal practice including financial services and investment advice, a management consultancy and a migration agency. It is an unusual fusion, but the common thread is helping the client.

The Tyndall & Co. ® ethos is that it has a duty to practice the “calling” of lawyers, which is to help, protect and serve clients. It is a “calling lawyer”.

The firm strives fearlessly to obtain outcomes in the client’s best interests by all lawful and proper means, to the best of the firm’s skill and diligence. This includes seeking justice and advocating for clients in all types of situations.

It is a small and private law firm. In a world of the “mega-lawyer” (1), small is beautiful! The big firms in “mega-law” (2) have been criticised by academics that they are more focused on the business of law rather than on helping people (3).

Tyndall & Co. is the opposite of the mega-lawyer and actually wants to help clients.

It has clients who are rich and poor, who have been clients for many years and who value this difference and the human approach.

These are not just words. The firm provides free or pro bono law work and has contributed over many years to pro bono causes and to isolated or socially disadvantaged people who lack economic resources. Tyndall & Co. conducts the annual “Pro Bono Cafe” which, according to clients, has been a huge success
